CROP 1913

Garden, Field and Flower Seeds

THE MANGELSDORF BROS. CO.
ATCHISON, KANSAS

Beans. Wardwell's Kidney Wax.

To the Trade

We herewith present our Wholesale Price List of fresh and carefully selected GARDEN, FLOWER and AGRICULTURAL SEEDS.

Our seeds are grown by the most careful growers from pure and selected stocks, and we use every care to have all seeds we send out just as represented, but it must be understood that we do not in any way warrant them, nor will we be responsible for any failure thereof. At the same time we are always ready to consider any well-founded complaints.

We will not be undersold by any reliable house on seeds of like quality. Quality is always our first consideration. Cheap seeds are dear as a gift.

NOTICE—We sell 10 pounds at the 100 pound rate, one-fourth bushel at bushel rates, and one-fourth pound at pound rates. When a smaller quantity is ordered a small advance will be charged.

All prices are subject to market fluctuations.

All seamless bags will be charged extra at cost price and are not returnable.

TERMS

Grass, Clover, and all Field and Agricultural Seeds, Onion Sets, Potatoes and Sweet Potatoes, are sold for NET CASH only.

All accounts of Vegetable Seeds are sold on terms of 60 days, 2 per cent discount 10 days payment.

Overdue accounts subject to SIGHT DRAFT, with exchange, without notice.

Satisfactory references required from new customers.

All prices subject to change without notice.

ADVERTISING MATTER

Fine lithographed "HANGERS" for the window; "LABELS" for Seed Boxes and Jars, and Retail Catalogues for distribution to customers furnished free with every order for Bulk Garden Seeds.

WE BUY

We are always in the market to buy Timothy, Clover, Kaffir, Sorghum, Millet, Pop Corn, etc., and are ready to offer full market price. Bags for mailing samples sent on request.

WHITE SWEET CLOVER

(Melilotus alba.)

White Sweet Clover or Bokhara Clover, as it is also called, is a hardy biennial plant, erect and branching in growth. It starts up very early in the spring and in its second year it reaches a height of from 5 to 12 feet, blooms, matures its seed and dies. However, there is usually enough seed scattered to reseed and the crop is continuous unless cut before the seed ripens. When young, the plants resemble Alfalfa very closely. Sweet Clover has a peculiar bitter taste and the flowers and leaves a sweet vanilla-like odor, by which it is easily distinguished.

It seems to grow in all climates and with little regard to the character of the soil. It is found growing in gravel-pits, heavy clay soils and sometimes in almost pure sand. Nor is it particular as to moisture. It stands more dry weather than Alfalfa, yet is often found growing in low wet soils.

It sends its roots to a great depth. It is a legume like Red Clover and Cow Peas and like these plants, has the faculty of extracting nitrogen from the air and storing it up in the roots, thus fertilizing the soil for the use of succeeding crops.

It is a valuable forage crop; while some animals refuse it at first because of its peculiar taste and odor, they soon learn to like it and thrive on it. In food value it does not differ greatly from Alfalfa. The crop may be pastured closely and there is little danger of bloating. For hay it should be cut just as it is coming into bloom and is handled in much the same way as Alfalfa. A second cutting can usually be secured 40 to 60 days later, if not pastured. It is also used to some extent as an ensilage crop, put into the silo and fed successfully in this way.

It is an excellent plant for bee pasture, as it blooms continuously from June to October. It is not troublesome in cultivated fields and can usually be destroyed by mowing when in full bloom.

The seed may be sown on the bare ground during the winter, with spring grain crops during March, or on well prepared ground during April and May. It requires a firm seed bed with just enough loose soil on top to cover the seed. About 25 lbs. of clean hulled seed are required for an acre.

YELLOW ANNUAL SWEET CLOVER (Melilotus indica).

This is a distinct sort, much smaller in growth and lasts only one year. It is considered of little value and should not be confused with the White.

We can furnish White Sweet Clover, a choice clean quality of the true article. Samples and prices upon request.

Feterita yielding 30 bushels an acre in the Chico Basin near Fountain, Colorado, on a farm 6,000 feet above sea level. It was planted June 1st, and made about three tons of dry fodder an acre besides the grain. It stood four and five feet high and during the drouth it remained green. A field of Kaffir Corn given exactly the same treatment, made no heads at all.—From the Southwest Trail, issued by the Agricultural Department of the Rock Island Railway.

FETERITA

A new grain introduced into the United States from British Egyptian Sudan several years ago by the U. S. Department of Agriculture. It belongs to the same family as Kaffir Corn and Milo Maize and resembles these grains in some respects. It produces stalks of medium height, with ten to twelve leaves and a large upright seed head, well filled with grain. The plants stool freely, producing numerous smaller seed heads.

It has been thoroughly tried out in Kansas and Oklahoma, and is found to excel both Kaffir Corn and Milo Maize in earliness and in remarkable drouth resisting qualities. During the past summer of unprecedented drouth, Feterita made a good yield of grain and forage, while Kaffir and Milo Maize in the same fields were dried up completely. It is said to resist the attacks of chinch bugs as well as drouth.

It matures a crop in seventy days—about three weeks earlier than Kaffir Corn. If the ground is well saturated with moisture at planting time, Feterita will mature a crop without further rainfall and its value to dry sections or to sections having a very short growing season, can hardly be overestimated. It has been known to produce crops of 70 to 80 bushels of grain per acre, but 35 to 40 bushels is considered an average yield. It is not so good for forage as Kaffir Corn because it has less foliage, which is more difficult to save. At the Hays Experiment Station in Kansas, where it has been grown rather extensively for the past two seasons, Feterita has proven a fairly good crop for the silo.

The grain is white, somewhat larger than Kaffir Corn; it has about the same feeding value as Milo Maize, but is softer and more apt to heat if stored in bulk; however the heads can be piled up without danger of heating, and it is readily fed in this way without threshing.

It may be fed to all kinds of live stock and poultry, whole or ground, mixed with other grain or alone, with equally good results as Corn, Kaffir Corn or Milo Maize.

We can furnish choice re-cleaned and tested seed. Ask for samples and prices.
